State Highways Are Reported in Fair Condition

Water Over Some Roads in Southern Part of State, Commission Reports

Reporting all state trunk highways in good to fair condition for travel, the state highway commission today urged cautious driving to prevent accidents.

Snow in the extreme north portion of the state, in the vicinity of Huley, interfered with traffic a few days ago. Practically all of the ice has disappeared on highways, excepting short stretches especially in wooded areas, the commission reported.

The following detours are in effect: Calumet county, S. T. H. 57, Chilton-New Holstein road; Columbia county, S. T. H. 16, Columbus-Portage road; Green county, S. T. when the steel tug was ripped apart by an explosion and was cast up the burning hull of the Boyd. The tugmen all from Beaver Island were Captain L. L. Hill, his son, Lord Bruce McDougough, Everett Cole and his brother, Raymond.

This mishap halted operations until two weeks ago when Brevort fishermen carefully laid out a trail over the ice.

The fishermen quietly carried on salvage work and it was only days ago that the fact of the ice break became known. Then the rush began. Residents from as far north as Sault Ste. Marie, as far west as Escanaba, and as far east as Godfreyville, swarmed onto the big tanker and streams of cars and trucks worked back and forth to land day and night.

Despite the fatal accidents yesterday the rush of gasoline salvagers kept pace today.

'Propaganda' Hit On Both Sides in Court Struggle

Hopkins' Address Rapped After Robinson Scores Letter

Washington—Charges of "unfair propaganda" both for and against President Roosevelt's court plan sounded in the senate today.

Opponents of the plan cited a radio speech scheduled for tonight by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

Reference was made to Hopkins' address by Senator Burke (D-Neb.), an opponent of the plan, after Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, read to the senate what he called "an untruthful, unfair and deliberate" piece of propaganda.

Shouting so that his words echoed down the capitol corridors, Robinson challenged senators to defend the letter he read asking that protests be sent to congressmen.

Burke arose, and without immediately answering Robinson, denied he was influenced by such propaganda.

He asked if the Democratic leader considered the letter "any more dangerous to a free expression of opinion than the announced radio address tonight by Works Progress Administrator Hopkins on the other side, appealing to thousands of WPA workers."

Raps "Propaganda"

"What about that kind of propaganda?" Burke asked.

"I do not know what Mr. Hopkins is going to say," Robinson replied, "and so I must ask to be excused from commenting. I think the works progress administrator has a right to speak on the subject. Does the senator think he doesn't?"

"I think he does and I think the gentleman who wrote that letter had a perfect right to write it," Burke replied.

Senator Robinson referred to a letter he received urging that protests against the plan be sent to members of congress.

Addressed to "Dear Christian Friend," the letter said President Roosevelt wished to become "an absolute dictator."

"It sounds like one of the old appeals of the Ku Klux Klan," Robinson shouted.

Fresh talk of compromise on President Roosevelt's reorganization program sprang up today, but few suggestions appeared likely to bring together the hostile factions.

Congressional friends already had submitted to the president one such proposal, the nature of which was not disclosed. They had received no word, however, as to its reception.

Some on both sides held that a likely basis for compromise would be a bill requiring 7 to 2 decisions by the supreme court to invalidate acts of congress.

Other proposals most frequently discussed were to cut the proposed expansion of the court down to two new justices instead of a possible six, or to combine the court reorganization bill with a constitutional amendment.

Compromise Possible

Senate liberals said a compromise on a bill to require a 7 to 2 decision would pass the senate. The president turned this down in early conversations with congressional leaders on the theory that it would require a constitutional amendment.

Some on both sides pressed the 7 to 2 rule could be enforced on the court by a simple act of congress. Some of the liberal group were hostile to the court reorganization. Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.), Johnson (R-Calif.), and Nye (R-N.D.).

A similar proposal, to require 8 to 1 verdicts by the court to invalidate acts of congress, has been proposed by Senator Gillette of Iowa.

Plan Final Match for Inter-City 'Y' Title

About 40 Appleton Y. M. C. A. athletes will tangle with a Green Bay dormitory village squad at 6:45 this evening in the third and deciding match for the inter-city championship. The Green Bay delegation is expected to include about 35 men.

Hostilities will be forgotten early in the evening when the group join for a family dinner at the "Y" competition in handball, basketball, bowling, billiards, pool and bridge will complete the evening's sport. In previous matches Appleton won on its home courts while Green Bay won a decisive victory on its home floor.

blood, were found in the snow a short distance from the shack. Sands said he threw the bottles away this morning, that the whiskey bottle was empty but that the other, containing rock and rye, had some liquor in it and that he had thrown it away.

A shoe was found under the back of Brown's neck but bore no stamp to indicate that it might have been used as a weapon. Aside from the stained bed, the shack showed no signs of a struggle.

Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, Outagamie county coroner, said preliminary examination of Brown's body showed no skull fracture, but the nose was broken. Death, he said, might have resulted from the combined effects of the beating and alcoholism, but the beating, if not the direct cause of death, was contributing factor.

Sands told the district attorney that when the fight started he shouted at Brady:

"Are you trying to kill him?"

Brady, Sands said, retorted:

"You old . . . I'll kill you too!"

Kennedy, Sands said, had nothing to do with the fight.

Brady, the authorities were told, is about six feet tall, weighs about 160 pounds, is 42 years old and has blue eyes and dun-colored hair. He was wearing a knee-length coat with a sort of fur collar, blue overalls and a cap.

Members of the coroner's jury called for 2 o'clock this afternoon were Michael Baumgartner, R. Dean, Oscar K. E. Williams, L. C. Jense and E. Kline.

Iowa, one of the Democratic opponents of court reorganization.

Leading opponents of the president's program asserted they would not accept a proposal to increase the size of the court in any form.

Debate on Program

Nevertheless, some administration supporters hoped that a compromise on two more justices might be evolved, especially if a resignation or two from the high bench should follow the president's signing of the voluntary retirement bill.

Sensors George (D-Ga.) and Cope land (D-N.Y.) criticized the president's program in addresses last night. Senator Black (D-Ala.) upheld it in a debate with Representative Brewster (R-Maine).

President Roosevelt was reported holding to his demand for enactment of his entire court program. The New York Times in a copyrighted story quoted him as telling friends:

"When I retire to private life on Jan. 20, 1942, I do not want to leave this country in the condition Buchanan left it to Lincoln."

"I cannot, in the brief time given me to state its deep and disturbing problems, solve these problems. I hope at least to have moved them well on the way to solution by my successor. It is absolutely essential that this solving process begin at once."

French Steamer Damaged When It Strikes Mine

Re-Armament Question Is Chief Question of European Powers

(By the Associated Press)

Spanish mines damaged a second foreign vessel off Spain's east coast today. Spanish government troops announced a wedge-like advance into insurgent southern lines and, throughout Europe, re-armament remained the number one concern of the powers.

A French steamer limped toward Palamos after hitting a mine. Last week a British steamer had a similar experience in the same lane, but reached a French port in safety. The British have been trying to find out who laid the mines—the Spanish government, holding that part of the Spanish coast, or their blockading insurgents.

The government troops said they had split the insurgent army which was moving along the south Mediterranean coast from Malaga. They contended the maneuver isolated the advance part of the enemy force from "Italians and Germans in the rearward."

Two retired British naval officers began to organize the neutrality contingent which will watch the Hispano-Portuguese border to keep Spain out of the war.

The general land-sea patrol scheme to isolate the war, shaping up slowly, drew resentment from government Spain. Valencia authorities expressed fear the plan for Italian and German warships to patrol the eastern government-occupied coast would mean the ships actually would attack the shoreline.

Italy's fascist grand council, supreme tribunal of the empire, assembled for a night meeting—mainly to consider what must be done to Italy's warword to counter Great Britain's $7,500,000,000 armament plan.

Edward to Marry Mrs. Simpson on May 2, Is Report

London Fears Romance May Overshadow Coronation Festivities

London—The duke of Windsor was reported today to have set May 2 as the day for his wedding to Wallis Simpson, causing fear the royal romance would overshadow the coronation of his brother-succesor just 10 days later.

Former King Edward VIII generally was believed to have made it clear in weekend inferences that he intended to marry the woman for whom he abdicated his throne as soon as her divorce from Ernest Simpson becomes absolute April 27.

The lights in Edward's study at Enzesfeld castle near Vienna were said to have burned until 6 o'clock a. m. yesterday while he thrashed out the question with his favorite brother, the duke of Kent, and Lord Brownlow, who accompanied Mrs. Simpson on her flight from England.

It has been becoming daily more apparent the people of England will not have forgotten their self-exiled ruler by May 12 when his brother, George VI, is to be crowned.

Among the large body of the middle class, a definite feeling of apathy toward the coronation is being expressed—a feeling of indifference that could not have been imagined six months ago.

The government and those responsible for the success of the traditional coronation ceremonies were said to feel such a feeling of apathy toward the coronation is being expressed—a feeling of indifference that could not have been imagined six months ago.

Dozens of solid middle class British citizens admit the coronation—since Edward no longer is to be the object of their affections—has lost its "kick," and that to them George VI will seem a substitute king for quite a while.

Dismisses Motion For New Trial in Slaying of Beell

Dingman's Counsel Fails to Present Sufficient New Evidence

Stevens Point—Circuit Judge Byron B. Park dismissed today a motion for a new trial for Edward Dingman, convicted slayer of Fred Beell, Marshfield policeman and former world heavyweight wrestling champion.

Dingman is serving a life sentence in state prison. He was arrested for the Beell slaying after finishing a term in a Nebraska prison. He was charged with being the trigger man in the robbery of a Marshfield, Wis., brewery in August, 1933, in which Beell was slain.

In denying the re-trial motion, Judge Park held that Attorney Byron B. Conway of Wisconsin Rapids, counsel for Dingman, had presented no alternative, newly-discovered evidence which would warrant granting a new trial.

The judge said he had no jurisdiction except on the basis of newly-discovered evidence, because the case was tried more than a year ago.

Presents Affidavit

Conway presented an affidavit by Roman Wagner, an inmate of the state prison, which attempted to impeach the testimony of Frank Heinzen of Marshfield, a state witness who identified Dingman as the trigger man in the Beell slaying.

The affidavit said Heinzen had told Wagner he could not identify Dingman as the man who fired on Beell.

Conway argued there was no evidence to connect Dingman with the crime except Heinzen's testimony. Wagner's affidavit, Conway added, should be sufficient to discount Heinzen's testimony.

District Attorney Hugh H. Goggins, said the Conway re-trial argument was based on a request for reconsideration of old evidence rather than new evidence. He read a list of court cases, in which he said Wagner had been involved, in an attempt to discount the importance of the affidavit.

Conway said an appeal from the circuit court's conviction and denial of the retrial motion would be taken to the supreme court.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

Members of the relief committee will meet at 7:30 this evening at the city hall. Relief problems will be discussed with F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director.

He pleaded not guilty today at Kenosha. (Associated Press Photo)

Amendment May be Sought as Result Of Court Proposal

Size of Supreme Tribunal Fixed by Constitution in 38 States

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—An examination of the constitutions of the 48 states reveals that 38 of them specifically reserve to the people the right to fix the size of the supreme courts of their respective states.

This is done by placing in the state constitutions the exact limit of the size of the court. In only ten states is there an absence of limitation. So in more than three-fourths of the states of the union the legislature may not enlarge or diminish the size of the highest tribunal.

As a matter of fact, the federal constitution does not empower congress or the president to fix the size of the supreme court. The right to change the size of the supreme court was assumed by congress in 1789 and has never been challenged. This is largely due to the fact that the changes in the size of the supreme court have never before been directly related to the character or quality of the decisions. While the Roosevelt administration, a fortnight ago, gave congress the right to change the size of the court, this is now being brushed aside as a purely political purpose, and there is no longer any hesitancy here to acknowledge that the reason for changing the size of the supreme court is to get rid of certain of the present judges. Said Governor Phil LaFollette of Wisconsin last Saturday night speaking on the radio in favor of Mr. Roosevelt's plan:

"Of course the president's proposal will effect the decision of the court. It is intended to do exactly that."

Attorney General Cummings also dwelt at length on the character of the present supreme court's decisions in his recent speech advocating enlargement of the supreme court.

May Seek Amendment
In view of these aspects one outcome of the present controversy, even if Mr. Roosevelt should win, may be an agitation for a proposal to amend the federal constitution so that the number of justices of the supreme court shall be definitely fixed and not left hereafter to the president or the congress.

On this point, "the United States news" telegraphed to the chief justices of various state supreme courts to obtain a symposium of views on the question of whether congress or the people through the constitution should fix the supreme court of the United States.

From Chief Justice Charles A. Goss, supreme court of Nebraska, came this answer:

"Inasmuch as the federal constitution does not fix the number of justices of the supreme court of the United States and does not specifically grant the congress the right to determine the number, I would favor an amendment to the constitution, fixing the number at nine."

Says Nine Adequate
"First, because that number has been found to be adequate, and, second, because fixed determination of the number would largely remove from controversy an element that makes for political and social unrest. Our state constitution first fixed the state supreme court at three. It was later amended to seven. It works well. When exigencies demanded, there was no difficulty in securing an amendment."

From Chief Justice William H. Waste, of the state supreme court of California came this answer:

"In my opinion, the number of justices of the supreme court of the United States should be definitely fixed by constitutional amendment adopted by the people in the ordinary course and not be determined by an act of congress. In many, I believe, of the states the people by constitutional provision fix the number of members of their courts of last resort."

From Chief Justice William H. Folland, of the state supreme court of Utah, came this answer:

Should Be Independent
"The supreme court of the United States should be an entirely independent tribunal, not subject to influence or control by the executive or the congress. To attain this end, it might be better if the number of justices were fixed by constitutional amendment rather than leaving the power with the congress to be used by it in such manner or at such time as to actually influence the court decisions or, what is as bad, to give the impression that such is the case."

Chief Justice Coleman of Nevada, Chief Justice Blume of Wyoming and Chief Justice Sands of Montana concurred in the idea of a constitutional amendment to fix the size of the supreme court, only Chief Justice Anderson of Alabama, and Chief Justice Russell of Georgia declared themselves as opposed to the idea, though Chief Justice Rosenberry of Wisconsin thought it might have been done as an original proposition but was not necessary now because he did not favor making a general rule to cover particular cases.

Hollywood News And Gossip

By Robbin Coon

Hollywood—The years, contrary to the movie title, are not so long. It was only ten of them ago that Kay Francis was in a four-line role on Broadway, doubling also as understudy Stars were Kay Johnson and James Rennie, and also in the cast were Douglass Montgomery, Chester Morris and Sylvia Sydney.

The play returns to mind because Irving Rapper, who directed, now is serving time as a Hollywood dialogue director. That is, he translates for the actors what Director Michael Curtiz, who is frequently more enthusiastic than intelligible, wants them to say. Rapper, after his apprenticeship, probably will be a director himself.

As I understand it, Rapper might have been out here long ago had not Hollywood looked with suspicion and fear upon his association with Gilbert Miller in the theater. Anything connected with Miller was likely to be on the "artistic" side, and Hollywood-the-business is not so sure of "art." At any rate Rapper was available to Hollywood a long time before Hollywood cared to throw out a line and land him. What turned the trick (although Rapper the diplomat may deny it) was that some producer happened to thumb through a scrapbook and read clippings on the aforementioned play. The title thereof was reassuring—almost it might be said, right up the Hollywood alley. The title was "Crime."

In the film "Talent Scout," which spotlights Hollywood again, they have built a set to represent the reception office of a movie studio, reason being that the studio's own reception room was too plain to conform to the average fan's idea of what such a cubicle should be. The set is velvet draped and gilded, with ornate furniture and its walls adorned by five huge framed pictures of "Academy Pictures" hand, some star. The captions separately proclaim that this is the idol with his dog, with his house, with his pipe, with his book, and alone.

But the only difference between these pictures and those in the average studio reception room is that these are all of the same person.

Laurence Olivier, recently a hit in the English film "Fire Over England," might have stayed in Hollywood but for what happened on his previous visit.

He was imported originally to play opposite Garbo in "Queen Christina." After he arrived, the exploitation value of running Garbo with the late John Gilbert struck Metro as too great to overlook. Olivier, puzzled but smarting none the less, stayed on to make a few films, then departed.

And he went back, is the word from England, unless one certifying a general rule to cover particular cases.

Thus, six of the nine chief justices who replied to the questionnaire definitely favored a constitutional provision to fix the size of the supreme court of the United States. (Copyright, 1937) tain director, William K. Howard, happens to need him.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyer may appear together for the first time on the screen in "Wuthering Heights." Boyer and Pat Peterson were on the same lot, but not the same picture, when they met and married.

Your Income Tax

EXTENSION FOR FILING

It is important that the taxpayer render on or before the due date, which is March 15 if the return is filed on the calendar year basis, a return of income as nearly complete and final as it is possible for him to prepare. However, when by reason of illness, absence from home, inability to secure the necessary data, or for other good and sufficient reasons additional time is required, a reasonable extension of time may be granted. Application should be made in writing to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer files his returns on or before the due date of the return, a full recital of the causes for the delay being given. Except in the case of taxpayers who are abroad, no extension may be granted for a period of more than 6 months.

An extension of time for filing the return does not extend the time for payment of the tax, or any installment thereof, unless so specified in the extension. Application for an extension of time for payment of the tax or any installment thereof should be made on form 1127 to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue through the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer's return is filed. The applicant should set forth under oath the specific reason for desiring an extension, and should clearly indicate what hardship, if any, would result if the extension were not granted. In addition, a statement of assets and liabilities showing the taxpayer's financial condition as of the last day of the preceding month, or as of the close of the last taxable period, and a separate statement of receipts and disbursements for each of the 3 months immediately preceding the month in which the application is filed should be submitted. The amount of tax for which the extension of time of payment is desired should be stated. The Commissioner will not consider an extension of time for payment unless the request is made on or before the due date of the tax or installment thereof. If the extension is granted, interest at the rate of 6 per cent a year is collectible from the date the payment should have been made if there had been no extension to the expiration of the period of the extension.

Farmers Warned Against Purchase Of Inferior Seed

Only Stock Adapted to Wisconsin Winters Should Be Used, Stone Claims

Cheap clover and alfalfa seed now being imported from foreign countries is heavily infested with noxious weeds, A. L. Stone, state director of seed and weed control, cautioned Wisconsin farmers today. The warning was endorsed here by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

"Much of this seed produces plants which will not live through the winter," he declared. "Even if they live through the winter, they will not produce as well as our home-grown clover or alfalfa. The plants are more subject to insect and disease attacks, so there is almost certain to be a loss from using the imported seed."

Some of the seed is already in Wisconsin, and farmers will be strongly tempted to buy it because it sells at from 8 to 12 cents less per pound than home-grown seed, he said.

The conservation program, he warned, now provides that no payment of $2.50 per acre for seedling alfalfa will be made if unadapted alfalfa seed is used on the farm in 1937. Neither will $2 per acre be paid for seedling clover if unadapted seed is used.

Stone is in Guide

Imported seed is detected by its stain, and farmers should purchase only that which is stained violet, he emphasized.

"Imported seed, some of which may be hardy enough to live through the winter, is stained 1 per cent green," he explained. "Seed from southern Europe must be stained 10 per cent red, while seed from Canada, which is usually desirable for use in Wisconsin, is stained one per cent violet."

Stone said that a few Wisconsin seedsmen had sent in samples of the imported seed, and that some of the seed had originated from Poland.

One sample contained buckhorn at the rate of 35 per cent; another 975, and still another 835 buckhorn seeds per pound. The last-mentioned sample also contained the seeds of wild mustard, Indian mustard, and Canada thistle.

"If the red clover seed containing 975 buckhorn seeds per pound were sown alone at the usual rate of 12 pounds per acre, 11,700 buckhorn seeds would be sown on that acre," Stone pointed out, exhorting farmers to think what it would cost to get rid of it.

Samples of Hungarian clover seed contained buckhorn at the rate of 580 per pound, he revealed, while samples of alfalfa from Italy contained buckhorn at the rate of 905, 1,135, and 1,360 per pound. If this seed were sown, it would seed 18,100, 22,700, and 27,200 seeds per acre.

Many Varieties

These samples not only contained noxious weed seeds but some of them, contained as many as 16 other kinds of weed seeds. Among these were weeds like the wild carrot, sheep sorrel, white cockle, yellow dock and hoary alyssum, all of which may become very bad if neglected.

Farmers in Outagamie county are going to be confronted with much the same problem in seed purchase as in other parts of the state, Swanson said. There is some locally grown alfalfa available in this county but not a great deal. All that farmers have to offer for sale should be sent into the county agent's office or directly to the state seed laboratory. A test for purity and germination will make it possible for Outagamie farmers to legally dispose of their surplus seed. If farmers have any question as to whether or not they are getting foreign seed they should bring a sample to the county agent's office for examination, the agent stated.

Meetings on the soil conservation program will be held during the latter part of March and the clover and alfalfa situation will be discussed further at that time. There will probably be more poor seed in Outagamie county than there has been for some time due to the fact that good locally grown seed is scarce and high priced, he said.

Plan Fencing Class as WPA Education Project

A course in fencing under Lawrence Kerstetter has been established as part of the Appleton WPA education project. Classes, scheduled to start this week at the Salvation Army temple, Mr. Kerstetter was a member of the University of Wisconsin fencing team a few years ago.

About 30 persons are expected to enroll and anyone interested may obtain information about the course by contacting A. G. Meisinger at the vocational school. Students will furnish their own equipment which can be purchased for about $3.50.

Mr. Kerstetter at present is conducting two WPA classes in American traditions and ideals and economics of international relations.

Make Check on Number
Of Boys in CCC Camps

Work on checking the number of Outagamie youths now in CCC camps has been started by the certification bureau of the state public welfare department, according to Miss Maelyn Newell, certification supervisor. It is estimated that about 200 county youths are now in the camps. Another enrollment will be taken about April 1.

Lions Club Bowling

MODEL DAIRY FARM CONSTRUCTED FOR CONTEST

Jeanette Hersekorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hersekorn, 1133 W. Elsie street, is viewing the model dairy farm constructed by Washington school third grade pupils under Miss Alice Breitenbach. All pupils helped in building the barn which contains stalls for animals, haymows, electric lights and small cows and horses. The building is five feet high, five feet long and three feet wide. A picture of the exhibit is being sent to the "Weekly Reader," children's newspaper which is sponsoring a contest on farm buildings as prepared by children. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Pupils Build Model Dairy Buildings to Enter in Contest

First place in the "Weekly Reader" form contest is the aim of Washington school third graders since the completion of their modern dairy, which includes a barn, silo and windmill. The contest is open to any grade school classes and is sponsored by the newspaper which each student receives weekly.

Electric lights have been installed in the barn so that visitors after school hours may easily see features of the building which include regular stalls, hay mows, truck racks and pens. Stanchions have been constructed with small horses and cows placed in their right stalls.

A glass floor separates the barn from the hay mow so that all parts of the building may be viewed. The foundation is built of bricks brought by one of the students while the building is composed of discarded wood and beaver board. The barn is five feet high, five feet long and three feet wide. The silo and windmill are of similar height. Miss Alice Breitenbach was the faculty member in charge of the work.

Perfect attendance records during February for pupils of several schools have been reported by teachers to Frank Young, county superintendent of schools.

Pegler Tells What He Thinks of Burlesque

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—I have been wondering if the members of congress haven't anything better to do at this time than sit around a committee room while a couple of meat-show promoters mock whatever decency there may be left in the land, with a defense of the foulest type of entertainment ever presented outside an old-fashioned levee dump.

This refers to the respectful hearing given to Morton Minsky and Herbert Kay Minsky of New York by the house committee on immigration in connection with the Dickstein bill to limit the importation of foreign theatrical talent. This bill has some merit, because the Europeans treat American actors about the same as we treat Oriental coolies, and there should be some equalizing pressure on this side to protect the poor American "ham" from foreign competition.

The peril to art is only nominal, and a talking point for the opposition, because there isn't much art in most entertainment on the stage or in the glimmered glimmers of the present era, and anyway our kind friends on the other side would soon listen to reason if we were to get as tough with European performers as the Europeans are with ours. As it is, we pay money out of taxes to provide opportunities for unemployed piccolo players, acrobats and shrieking sopranos, while the jobs go to visitors with a faint reek of garlic or the tell-tale stains of chutney on their ties.

That part of the argument will keep, however, while I submit my contention that the modern burlesque show and the strip-tease, which the Brothers Minsky extolled as American art without a word of dissent from the committee, are pure filth.

What sort of females these are who get up on a stage and peel off their clothes for a lot of degenerates, I can only surmise. They look and act about the same as the talent in any continental brothel, but this may all be wholly impersonal and professional on their part, and the girls themselves home-loving innocents, and the victims of exploitation.

American Burlesque Sets
New Low in Entertainment

However, outward appearances are against a presumption of virtue for it is no exaggeration to say that the American burlesque show has now built a sewer all its own lower and viler than the Folies Bergere which was considered to be the lowest depth in the days of the war and after.

I have watched the steady campaign against decency in the meat section of the show business since 1920, or thereabouts when Morris Gest gave the customers a flash of a nude female encased in a shell of something like cake-icing at the old century. The commercial promoters took back somewhat after that, afraid of the police and clergy, but there came a couple of sloppy musical shows on Broadway, with the girls peeled to the hilt from the waist up, and from that time on it has been a case of anything goes.

Th comedians have specialized in deprecatory and laborious drollery, and there have been happy little moments between foul and leering artists, as the Minskys call them.

Under The Capitol Dome

By John Wyngaard
Post-Crescent Staff Correspondent

Madison — That youthful David Sigman of Manitowish county, acknowledged Progressive leader in the assembly, and author of bill 1A, the labor disputes bill, expects to be appointed to the labor relations board which is provided in the bill, is the opinion of some members of the legislature.

Sigman is a young man, compared to most members of his house, has been associated with labor unions for some years, and is a professional union organizer. He was chosen by the administration to reintroduce the labor bill this session, the most important and the most troublesome piece of legislation considered thus far, and has been leading the fight for speedy passage for the last month. The bill provides for a three member administrative labor board, each member to receive a salary of $5,000 a year. Membership on the board would be an important step upward for the young legislator, who not so long ago dropped his studies in the University of Wisconsin law school to enter politics.

Senator E. J. Roethlis of Fennimore is a newspaperman when he isn't busy with lawmaking. Since the session began he has been writing personality sketches of the most prominent members of both houses for his weekly newspaper. In a recent article he envied Senator Herman J. Severson's seat in the rear of the senate chamber, near the senatorial wives' section. This week the senator-publisher will devote a couple of columns to insurgent Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark, one of the oldest and most colorful members of the senate.

Assemblyman Alvin A. Handrich of Manawa loses no opportunity to tell the public about his constituency. In a radio speech a few days ago, the Waupaca county legislator devoted a sizeable portion of his time to extolling the beauties of his district, Fremont, "the little village which does things in a big city way."

Handrich told the radio audience that last year Fremont put across five major community programs that would do credit to the city of Madison, including the Legion fishing party, the water carnival, the furniture style show, Chess day, and the museum exhibit of natural history staged by the Fremont Conservation League.

Assemblyman Handrich apparently believes there is no harm in campaigning early.

Members of the Appleton Ministerial association, and other clergymen of the state, are sending telegrams to members of the legislature on the pin ball evil, which is receiving as much attention currently as any other pending legislation.

Senator Mike Mack, Shiocton, who was sent to the senate by the voters of Outagamie and Shawano counties last fall for a second term, made special trip to Madison to vote against the confirmation of John Buckley to the public service commission Mack, busy as chairman of the Outagamie county board meeting, rushed to Madison for the evening senate session which rejected Buckley. And, according to rumors, several Progressives who voted for Governor LaFollette's choice were not sorry when he was rejected. Buckley is very unpopular with a majority of the senate.

Some of the young men who were chosen for legislative jobs are finding that some of the patronage entails work. One clerical worker complained that he doesn't mind being asked to dig up material for legislators' speeches, but that too many members expect the clerk's force to write the speeches, such as are delivered over the radio and around the state. One clerk who expected a "soft" job has been assigned the secretarial work of a legislative officer, does messenger.

Miss Joan Clark Becomes Bride of John Catlin in Church Ceremony

CRUISING in Caribbean waters this week are Mr. and Mrs. John Catlin, whose marriage Saturday in the First Presbyterian church of Neenah was the highlight of the Fox River Valley social calendar this season. Bermuda too will be the honeymoon vacation destination of the newlyweds before they return to Neenah to move into their home at the corner of Webster and Lincoln streets.

The First Presbyterian church was decorated with Easter lilies and ferns for the candlelight ceremony at 7 o'clock Saturday evening when Mr. Catlin and Miss Joan Clark exchanged vows before the Rev. W. R. Courtenay.

The bride wore a pink chiffon velvet gown, fashioned in princess style with a long train and finger tip sleeves with pearl trim and a pink tulle veil that fell from a pearl coronet. Lilies of the valley, white sweetpeas and sweetheart roses fashioned the bouquet which she carried when she walked to the altar, escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage.

Describe Frocks

Turquoise blue chiffon fashioned the frocks worn by the four bridesmaids, Mrs. Winston Rodermeier, Park Ridge, Ill., Mrs. Colin J. Park, Madison, Wis., Mrs. J. M. Carleton Smith, Neenah and Mrs. Robert Carney, Chicago and the matron of honor, Mrs. Jacob Bischof, Chicago, who preceded the bride to the altar as the Mendelssohn wedding march was played. Aigrettes of blue feathers, in coronation style, were worn by the feminine members of the bridal party. The bouquets were of roses and sweet peas.

William Wing, Jr., Appleton, was best man, and Tom and Mark Catlin, Jr., Appleton, brothers of the bridegroom, Edward G. Heberlein, Madison, John Bell, River Forest, Ill., and William Kelleit, Menasha, were ushers.

Mrs. Mark Catlin, mother of the groom, wore a dark blue lace and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. C. B. Clark, mother of the bride, wore a deep blue lace.

The wedding reception and dinner were held at the Clark home on E. Wisconsin avenue, Neenah, after the ceremony.

Miss Clark was graduated from Rosemary hall, Greenwich, Conn., and attended the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and the New York School of Design.

Mr. Catlin, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Catlin, 322 South court, Appleton, is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and is associated with the Kimberly-Clark corporation as a chemical engineer. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. John Catlin, the principals in the most important wedding of the season in this vicinity, are shown here as they were leaving the First Presbyterian church in Neenah Saturday night after the ceremony which united them in marriage. Forsaking the bride's traditional white, except in her bouquet, Mrs. Catlin, the former Miss Joan Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clark, Neenah, wore a pale pink gown and veil that were a radiant accent to her dark hair. When they return from a cruise in southern waters, Mr. and Mrs. Catlin will make their home in Neenah. ## Pension Fund Anniversary Is Observed

THE twentieth anniversary of the successful administration of The Church Pension Fund, pension system of the Protestant Episcopal church, was celebrated in Episcopal churches throughout the country yesterday, among them All Saints Episcopal church of Appleton. Benefits totaling approximately $14,000,000 have been paid out since the fund's establishment and are now being paid at the rate of $1,300,000 a year to 2,260 retired or disabled clergymen and the widows and minor orphans of clergymen, according to a report issued by William Fellowes Morgan, president of the fund.

Agitation for a pension fund was started by the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, D. O., then bishop of Massachusetts, at the general convention in 1910, and three years later the general convention approved the establishment of The Church Pension Fund, the first church system to operate upon an actuarial reserve basis. Subsequently every diocese in the church gave individual approval. A nation-wide campaign started March 1, 1916 under the direction of Bishop Lawrence to raise an initial reserve of $3,000,000 necessary to provide for the clergy who had been ordained before the pension system started operations. A total of $8,700,000 was raised, and from this beginning the fund has grown until today it has assets of more than $32,000,000 with a reserve of $3,500,000 in excess of that amount.

Since the establishment of the church pension fund, three important subsidiaries have been established, all of which are flourishing: the Church Life Insurance Corporation, the Church Properties and Insurance Corporation, and the Church Hymnal Corporation.

The trustees of the fund, men distinguished in the ecclesiastical and financial worlds, include Stephen Baker, New York; William H. Crocker, San Francisco; Dean Milo H. Gates, New York; Bishop Cameron J. Davis, Buffalo; Charles A. Goodwin, Hartford; Bishop William Lawrence, Boston; Bradford E. Locke, New York; J. P. Morgan, New York; William Fellowes Morgan, New York; the Reverend Frank H. Wilson, Cincinnati; the Honorable Frank L. Polk, New York; Bishop Warren A. Rogers, Cleveland; the Honorable Orger Seymour, Connecticut; Bishop Ernest M. Stiles, Long Island; Samuel Thorne, New York; Allen Wardwell, New York; and Charlton Yarnall, Philadelphia.

MYRA HESS TO PLAY HERE A Community Artists series concert will be presented at Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday evening by Miss Myra Hess, English pianist. Hess, who has won widespread acclaim both Europe and America, is considered the leader among women pianists.

Leading Woman Pianist Will Perform at Chapel

MISS MYRA HESS, the phenomenal English pianist who is to appear in concert at Lawrence Memorial chapel at 8:30 Wednesday evening, is the acknowledged leader among women pianists and among the most distinguished of living exponents of piano music.

Born at Hampstead, London, the child's exceptional talent was quickly perceived by her parents who permitted her studies to begin at the age of five. Later, she became a pupil of Tobias Matthay, at the Royal Academy of Music, of which institution she is an associate and fellow.

When Miss Hess gave her first public recital in London it was with such marked success that she was engaged to play at important orchestral concerts at Royal Albert and Queen's Halls during that same year. Since then, her career has been a series of uninterrupted triumphs in Europe while her complete capture of America is now a matter of musical history.

Making her debut in New York, Jan. 17, 1922, Miss Hess immediately commanded attention by reason of the super-excellence of her message. Here was a young woman who had something to proclaim in the domain of piano playing that evoked unanimous praise and won profound admiration. She was accounted one of the high spots of the season and classed among the immortal great. She inspires her audiences by her thorough musicianship, beautiful tone, versatile interpretation, impeccable technique and charming personality.

Not since the days of Sophie Menter and Teresa Carreno had such a spontaneous and superlative art been demonstrated on the concert platform by a woman. Every season has been a repetition of her previous successes and this, her fourteenth season, starts with another full schedule of concerts.

Slayer Doomed to Die Tonight Hopes To Live Until 80

Chicago—A 37-year-old man was the last day of life for Joseph Rappaport, 30-year-old condemned slayer of a government informer, but the doomed prisoner, with an air of serene confidence, looked forward to death in old age.

"Justice won't allow me to die," he said from his death cell in the Cook county (Chicago) jail. "I'll think of death when I am old—60 or 70."

He was scheduled to die shortly after midnight tonight, in the electric chair. On five previous occasions his electrocution was held up by executive clemency.

His confidence of getting a sixth reprieve was engendered, he said, by a belief that the "state of Illinois would not commit murder by sending me to the electric chair."

Max Dent, the informer, was slain Oct. 8, 1935, shortly before he was to testify against Rappaport in a narcotics case.

Store Managers Are Barred From Store in Detroit

Union Leaders Consider Extension of Woolworth Sit-Down Strike

Detroit—A sit-down strike barred the management from a downtown store of the F. W. Woolworth company here today as union leaders prepared for a telephone conference to decide whether the strike should be spread to other stores of the 5-and-10-cent chain.

Louis Koenig, financial secretary of the local Waiters and Waitresses association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, said W. F. Maher, store manager, told him the strikers' demands would be forwarded to the company's mid-west headquarters at Cleveland and to the national offices at New York.

The strikers, mostly young women, have held the store building since noon Saturday. The Woolworth chain operates 40 stores in the Detroit area, and more than 2,000 in the United States.

Koenig said strike leaders would confer by telephone with union officials at Buffalo, N. Y., today.

The company announced that other stores would continue business as usual.

"If they don't close the other stores, we'll close them for 'em," said F. A. Loew, organizer for the Waiters and Waitresses union.

The union demands a wage increase of 10 cents an hour, elimination of overtime, a 48-hour week for women employees and a 54-hour week for bakery and kitchen men. The management declined to deal with the union unless the strikers vacated the store.

A spokesman for the management said a wage increase of $1 weekly for all employees on full time was put into effect Saturday, providing a $15 minimum for counter girls. Strikers said half of the employees were working less than full time, with many earning only $10.44 weekly.

Going Along Is Way to Get Children to Attend Church

BY ANGELO PATRI

"My son refuses to go to church any more. He says he doesn't see the good of it. He'd rather take a walk in the country or stay home and read a good book. His father and I do not go often. I have to get the dinner ready, and my husband is tired after his week's work and likes to rest and read his paper. Don't you think that a young man of eighteen ought to go to church?"

How about an old man and an old woman, at least old enough to father and mother a young man of eighteen? Why don't they go with the young man they are anxious to train in righteous ways? Diners can be prepared on Saturday, for the greater part, and so lighten Sunday's labors. Father could rest and read after church as well as before it.

The only way to get children to go to church and like it is to go with them. Sending children to church and Sunday School is not going to keep them going there. That is done by taking them, staying with them, sharing all that goes on there with the children and actually behaving as though it were a pleasure.

Church service is a spiritual relaxation. At least that is what it is intended to be, and if one goes there with that idea one is likely to have it realized. There is a mood for churchgoing. It is induced by preparation, which consists of meditation, prayer and faith. Go to church in faith-believing and you will find rest, a truer, more lasting rest and peace than any book or paper, read in the narrowness of an easy chair, can ever bring.

Young people who have been reared in the church habit seldom break away from it. If the routine is established early, if the whole family follows it carefully, no thought of breaking it enters their heads. It is the thing to do on Sunday morning and it is done.

The home background is what usually decides the children. If they hear church and church members spoken well of, respected, supported, loved, they follow in respect and loyalty. But—this often happens—if they hear, "Eh! Church is twenty-five dollars for it, eh? Suppose he has to make up his church subscriptions some way. Fifteen would have been plenty, but he's a pillar of the church."

"Did you hear about Mrs. Gaby? What do you know about that?"

You might know. These goody-goody folk bear watching. I'll bet she hasn't missed a church service in ten years. Right up in front and then she does this.

The idea seems somehow to be that if a man or woman attends church service regularly he is charged to keep himself unspotted on the world, and should be become even faintly smugged by his contact with his not-so-good neighbors, he is doubly damned. Children absorb all these implications, attitudes and actions and behave accordingly.

Children go to church and profit by attendance there if they have been reared that way. Take them, don't send them.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

Player "Ducks" When He Uses Low to Save High Card

BY ELY CULBERTSON

A player "ducks" when he plays a low card, rather than a high card, in order to have his high card as a future entry. You have learned that in establishing long suit winners, you must first make the proper honor trick plays, then establish your low cards by sacrifice. Sometimes you then will have no entry to the established low cards. In such cases you give up the necessary number of tricks to the opponents immediately. Then, when you finally use your honor tricks, they act as entries to the remaining long suit winners.

NORTH
A 5 9 7 4 2
SOUTH
A 8 5

If the ace and king of spades were played and then a low spade led, the remaining cards probably would be established, but without an entry North could never lead them. If North ducks the first round, South can play spades again upon regaining the lead. Now North will take his ace and king and run the rest of the suit.

Relieving the Burden

It is your own bidding which can either increase or reduce your partner's burden. The essence of good bidding is to make one's partner's decisions as clear cut as possible. West, dealer.

NORTH-SOUTH VULNERABLE.

NORTH
A 9 8 4

Q J 10 5 4
A 8 4

SOUTH
A K 7 5 3 2
A 7
A K 6 5

The bidding:

West North East South
2 clubs 2 spades Pass (final bid)

The failure to reach the lay down contract of four spades was 100 per cent South's fault. East's opening bid was rather light, but strategically sound, not vulnerable, in third position. South, with three and one-half honor tricks, was almost justified in making a take-out double rather than simply overcalling with one spade, but in actual fact his over call was a better course. If he should double and North should respond with two diamonds, South would be greatly embarrassed. His spade suit was not nearly good enough to show at the two-level in the face of, perhaps, a worthless hand in the North position, and two diamonds might be crucified. But, while the one spade overcall was bidding is to make one's partner's decisions as clear cut as possible.

Strange Birds

I-FLAMINGOES

We might call the flamingo a "flaming bird" or "flamingo," the name comes from a Latin word meaning "flame," and the most common color is red, which may remind a person of fire. The other, but less common, colors of the feathers are pink and white.

about a foot high, and usually are placed from two to four feet apart. Sometimes a nest has only one egg in it, but in others cases the nests contain two or three. The hatching is about one month.

The males have a brighter and more flashing reddish color than the females. This agrees with the rule for other families of birds. The mother birds, which do most of the work of sitting on the nests, have feathers which are less easy to notice. This helps to guard them from being seen by enemies.

Flamingoes find their food by "grubbing" for it in shallow waters. They scratch the bottom with their feet, and plunge their heads down to obtain what they can. Worms, minnows, shellfish and frogs are among the victims seized in their strangely-bent beaks.

A flock of flamingoes will have a pair of sentinels keep watch while the others eat, and give warning when danger comes.

Flamingoes are good runners, but not very good swimmers. Their webbed feet can be used as paddles in the water, but these birds are awkward and rather slow when they swim. Their best movement is through the air. Thanks to their strong wings, they can rise and fly along at a good rate. The flock follows a leader, either forming in a "V" shape, or else fly in the wedge-shaped group which is common for geese.

tion left much to be desired North put in a free raise to the spades over West's club bid, and it now was up to South to bid his full strength. His greatest worry, namely, the trump suit itself, should have been virtually swept away by North's raise, and the possession of three outside honor tricks, with good distribution, should have told South that a game was on. On the chance, perhaps he was proud of his own courage in "pushing" to three spades, but he should not have been. North needed a telescope to find another raise on his hand, and his pass to three spades was evidently correct. He already had given a free raise and, as far as he knew, his hand, outside the spade suit itself, was worthless, since his heart honors were under the heart bid.

This was just another case of inconsistent bidding. South had properly held back on the first round, due to the uncertainty of the trump suit. Once this was resolved by North's free bid, South should have let go the anchor.

Suggests A Day of Coddling

BY ELSIE PIERCE

JUST about this time of the year women are apt to be down in the depths of the doldrums. Spring isn't quite here, even though Easter does come early this year. The new hat and wardrobe is not yet bought, and even anticipation doesn't seem to have its usual thrill. In short, a spring tonic is sorely needed.

What to do? My suggestion is a whole day devoted to coddling, pictorially speaking. If you're a housewife and friend Husband has gone off to business and children are safe in school and you're blissfully alone, make the most of your spare time.

First—A Scented Bath

First, get into a tepid, scented bath. There's nothing quite like a scented bath to lift one out of the blues, to flatter one's ego. Take time, for instance, the very odor is invigorating, stimulating to the entire system. A pine-scented bath can turn the same trick as the proverbial "rose-colored glasses."

Relax in the tub. Meantime, give yourself a facial. The facial might be started just one jump ahead of the tub. Cleanse the face thoroughly. Remove cleansing cream with tissues. Then apply a stimulating cream, the type that stings a bit and leaves the skin tingling. Out of the tub, pat yourself dry and use a perfume bath oil or bath dusting powder—gain anything that seems to set you up. Remove the stimulating cream from face. Apply a good emollient cream and massage gently. Leave a thin layer on the skin for a while. Now lie down—yes, actually. Your ironing isn't due to attend to, but the mere fact that you have the courage to let them ride for an hour or two or even "until tomorrow" will add a valuable ingredient to the "spring tonic."

From this point on you can add as much "spring tonic" spice as you wish. Do a few setting up exercises, bend and stretch and twist and breathe deeply. You can give yourself a home manicure, you can set your hair, put it up in little curls, put on a net and wait for the ringlets to dry in. You can pluck the stray hairs in your brows, you can pedicure your toenails. Let your time and inclination guide you.

Gradually you'll begin feeling like a million dollars. Apply your make-up, put on your favorite costume—and if you have more courage go out for lunch, or tea. Forgive your thousand little duties. Presently you'll be out of the doldrums—that much nearer to beauty.

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Diet" (Booklet 201) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to The Bell Litho, care of this newspaper, 247 W. 33rd Street, New York, N. Y.

More Than Beauty Needed By Woman to Hold Mate

BY DOROTHY DIX

Do you think I have lost my physical attraction?" asked a woman of me the other day. She had been languishing and making eyes at a group of men, all of whom had mysteriously faded away and left her stranded, a poor, forlorn wreck of one who had been a beauty in her youth.

When she was sweet-and-twenty she was as lovely a creature as you ever saw. Skin like snow and roses. Eyes like violets, dressed in clear, waving golden hair and a figure as slender and lissom as a reed. Everywhere she went she was admired, courted, fêted. Men were crazy over her, and before she had been out a year she married. But she had nothing but her good looks and she felt she needed nothing else, so she cultivated neither her mind nor her heart. She made a selfish, self-centered wife and eventually her husband tired of a dull companion who had no interest except in adorning her body.

DOROTHY DIX

Now she is a woman in her late forties. Divorced. Home gone Husband gone. Beauty gone. Dried hair. Painted cheeks. Wrinkles coming. Stupid. Boreome. Her wand of enchantment broken. Vainly trying to attract men and asking: "Have I lost my physical charm?"

As I looked at this pathetic woman, I wondered if beauty is really God's best gift to women as women think it is. That good looks are the most desirable attribute that a woman can have is the fixed belief of the entire feminine sex. It is what every woman craves for herself. It is what every mother prays for her girl child may have. It is what millions of women spend millions of dollars every year trying to attain. Yes, after all, it is beauty so important to a woman? Does it go farther than anything else in securing her happiness and success in life?

I think not. I think that beauty is often a curse than a blessing to a woman, and that when the poet sang of the fatal gift of beauty he said a true thing. The beautiful girl is doomed from the beginning to the inevitable tragedy of seeing her hair lose its luster and turn from gold to ashes; of seeing her eyes fade and lose their sparkle; of seeing the roses wither in her cheeks and her figure grow fat or scrawny; of knowing the charms by which she had lured men were going and being unable to stay them. It compensates a woman for never having been good-looking to never have to go through that ordeal and never to have people tell her how she has "changed."

Then the beauty seldom has anything else but beauty to recommend her. There are, of course, rare cases in which Nature lavishes all her good gifts on a girl and bestows upon her intelligence and a sweet disposition in addition to superlative good looks, but these favorites of Lady Luck are few and far between. Mostly when a woman's head is overadorned on the outside it is skimpily furnished within and being good to look at, she does not consider it necessary to make any effort to make herself pleasant and interesting as her plainer sisters do.

While beauty may be enough to catch a husband for a girl, it isn't enough to hold him. This is partly because beauty does not last, and partly because no man spends his

Discusses Hedges Against Higher Interest Rates

Babson Says Successful Man One Who Can Readily Adjust Himself

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Fl.—"A successful man is one who can readily adjust his policies and viewpoint to changed conditions". This ability is one of the fundamental essentials for success in business or investing. If a man cannot shift his policies with the tides and trends, he is doomed to business failure. For such a man there are only two alternatives: (1) Get out of business and stay out of it, or (2) Hedge so that whichever way the wind blows he is at least partially protected.

As a matter of fact, only the best informed business men and investors are usually able to detect a shift in the basic trends in time. Most conservatives believe that the safest policy is to hedge against all probabilities. They never put all their eggs in one "policy basket". For instance, a concern will often neglect one line to push another product; but will continue to manufacture the less popular item as protection against the souring of the leading seller. Similarly, an investor may believe that the "boom is off" a certain group of companies engaged in a stable business, but he will hang on to these stocks as protection against a slump in some volatile securities.

Money Goes Lower

For four years amazed business men and investors have watched money rates sink lower and lower. Investors have gradually adjusted their thinking to terms of 3 1/2 per cent return on prime bonds while business men now figure on 4 per cent bank charges as tops for their borrowings. The smart members of this group, however, have not fallen into this trap. They are busily figuring out ways and means of protecting their bond portfolios and production costs against a rise in money rates. Low interest rates are now no more a permanent part of our financial life than were the 8 per cent call money charges in 1929. Hedges against higher interest rates are easy enough to find. The real trick, however, is to discover a hedging medium that combines safety with profit possibilities.

In this connection I think that bank stocks fit into the picture fairly well. Banks have had a hard time of it the past few years. During the depression they were forced to take tremendous losses on both their securities and their loans. Then after writing off millions of assets against undistributed surplus came the long, slow, steady pressure on interest rates. To complicate matters further, many a sound bond issue yielding a good return has been called. The investment board of your bank can tell you of the hours spent in searching for profitable avenues for loans. Earning power of banks naturally suffered heavy losses during the years of readjustment and bank stocks lost favor with investors.

Far Behind

The result is that this group has fallen far behind the upward movement of industrial stock values. The period of adjustment, however, is now about over and the outlook is much brighter. Many of the tiers lopped off as worthless four years ago are now showing remarkable recovery. Real estate has made a fine come-back, while stocks held against loans to individuals are above water again. At the same time operating expenses have been cut drastically. For example, charges for services, formerly given gratis, are now being made on a fee basis. Commercial loans have hit their low and are on the rebound. The national level is today $1,000,000,000 above last summer's figure. While the total is still low, the trend is in the right direction.

Browsing back over bank history, you will find that the source of banking profits has often changed. In pre-war days these commercial loans were the leading profit item. Then during the "wild twenties" the emphasis shifted to loans to individuals on stocks, and on income from investment banking activities. Today the trend seems to favor again, this time toward trust business, consumer credit, and personal financial services. Even so commercial loans are by no means a relic of by-gone days. In fact, I believe that there is a more

8,255 Local Employees Get Account Numbers

Three hundred and sixty-five account numbers were issued during February with 36 of these given out Feb. 29. The second peak day was Feb. 25 when 32 were issued. ## Seek Bids Soon on Rural Electric Lines

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau. Washington — Bids for construction of 305 miles of power line by the Oconto Electrical Cooperative can be called for in about two weeks, the Rural Electrification Administration has informed Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton.

This will follow final approval of the cooperative's request for a loan of $290,000, which Schneider says was just given by Administration John Carmody.

Preliminary approval was given some time ago, Schneider's office said, but it was necessary for Carmody to sign the loan contract before the project could actually get underway.

The Oconto project, he said, will serve 1,025 customers.

than ordinary expansion ahead in this type of loan due to the Federal Tax on Undistributed Profits. Most corporation officials have not the courage to retain profits for use as working capital, paying a tax of 7 per cent or more thereon, when an equal amount of bank credit is available at 3 per cent or less. For example, one big corporation's annual report showed borrowings for this purpose—the first bank loans reported in many years. Furthermore, as activity continues to grow, the ordinary demand for commercial loans must increase. Most corporations have so far been able to finance their heavier volume of business out of surplus and cash on hand. Further gains in commodity prices and the volume of orders mean more working capital than many concerns have available. The fact that commercial loans are finally expanding means that business houses are beginning to ask banks for needed credit.

Bond Prices Down

Hence, earnings should improve even with money rates at present-day levels. Any strengthening of interest rates would, of course, sharpen the opportunities for bank profits, but it would hurt bond prices. The major reason why bonds are selling in the attic is that interest rates are in the cellar. Boost interest rates and bond prices will tumble. The same comment applies to cost sheets. Left the price of money and corporation profits suffer. But—booster up interest rates and bank earnings will rise. Hence, for many months ahead bank stocks offer a fairly conservative hedge against a strengthening in money rates and a resultant injury to bond prices and corporation profits.

If especially call attention to the stocks of your local banks. The various new Federal banking laws have in most instances added to the security of banks' stocks. For example, the "liability" of holders of National Bank stocks will be terminated on July 1 of this year. These issues, however, are not speculative mediums. In fact, they are very inactive, but they have many advantages as investment issues. Earnings of most "country" banks in 1936 showed a fine pick-up over the previous year. If your hometown bank does not own too many long-term government bonds and if its board of directors is made up of sensible men, then your local bank stocks should not be a good long-bull investment.

The Boy Scouts Offer You An Opportunity to INVEST IN AMERICAN MANHOOD

Beginning tomorrow, public spirited citizens will commence the annual drive for funds to carry on the work of the Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America. Men, interested in the future of American boys, are giving their time in a frank effort to collect the amount necessary to carry out a program that has the complete endorsement of every organization and individual who knows about scouting.

As many people as possible will be approached. You are likely to be among them and it will mean much to the success of the campaign, and the future of our boys, if you are ready and willing to contribute when a representative pays you a call. Should you not be visited, contact scout headquarters in Appleton and make your pledge.

Your money goes entirely toward furthering the scout program in the valley. It is spent according to a carefully-planned budget. All accounts are audited by a certified public accountant and a statement of operations is always available for you to inspect.

Citizenship — good citizenship — depends upon youth training. The Boy Scouts alone can give this training without prejudice, and without regard for race, religion or financial position. Make your investment in American manhood this week.

Bob Borenz Stars As St. Mary High Wins From Lourdes

Millermen Take Catholic Conference Game From Marinette, 23 to 19

Menasha—Playing his last conference game for his school, Captain Bob Borenz wrote his name in the book of St. Mary High school sports Saturday night when he swished six buckets and four free throws to lead the Millermen to a 23 and 19 victory over Lourdes High school cagers of Marinette in a Catholic conference battle at St. Mary gymnasium.

Borenz was the spearhead of the attack and broke back on defense. He seemed to cover the gray floor with seven league boots, racing in to take rebounds, intercepting passes, the key man of the St. Mary floor game and broke away twice to dribble the length of the floor for buckets.

The Millermen were at a disadvantage on comparative height as they would look good on any college team. However, with the inside playing of their captain, Coach Marve Miller's charges maintained an even six point margin almost from the starting whistle. The half ended 10 to 4, and the third quarter 13 to 7, in favor of the locals.

R. Leigois, Lourdes center, was a capable opponent for Borenz. He had the jump on the St. Mary center but his mates failed to take advantage in securing the ball from the tipoff. Leigois led the Lourdes quintet with three baskets. Murphy, Lourdes forward, looked good towards the end of the fray when he dumped in two circus shots from difficult angles and brought his team within four points of the winning score.

The game opened slowly from the scoring angle and 11 minutes had ticked away before either team had scored a bucket. At that point, St. Mary led 4 and 1 on charity tosses. The half ended 10 to 4 for the Menashans. Six minutes of the second half had gone before Meyers scored a field goal to bring the tally to six for the visitors.

Borenz then dribbled the length of the floor for a basket and followed with a free throw. The quarter ended as he duplicated his dribble in for another sensational bucket. In the final stanza Leigois bucketed a long one and Borenz retaliated with a short shot. Meyers scored a bucket on a single shot. Leigois brought his team's tally to 15 and Resch and Will hit the hoop for St. Mary's total of 23. Murphy then tallied to wild shots as the game ended 23 and 19.

March Weather Makes Entrance as Gentle Lamb Today

Generally fair and somewhat colder weather is forecast tomorrow by the weatherman who stated that the arrival of March weather as a gentle lamb does not mean it will roar out like a lion.

Charles L. Mitchell, Washington weather forecaster said that he hoped the public some day would "consign all this lion-lamb, groundhog day and other middle age superstitions to the limbo of the forgotten."

Maximum and minimum temperatures of 29 and 14 degrees were recorded in the last 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Acclaim Begins at 73 For Artist Eilshemius

BY CHARLES NORMAN

New York—(P)—Louis Michel Eilshemius sits with a shawl around his shoulders and a blanket over his legs in a room cluttered up by his unsold canvases.

The pictures are ranged a score deep on the floor, they perch on chairs, hide a sofa from view, engulf the piano and overflow into the next room.

In their midst, like King Canute with his ankles in the tide, sits their creator, who calls himself "Supreme Parnassian" and "Transcendent Eagle of Art." Above, perched on top of a towering bookcase, two stuffed pelicans, with the dust of years on them, look down placidly.

'Mighty Man' Is He
By his own admission, Eilshemius has painted 9,000 pictures; written, he says, 200 books, most of them unpublished; and composed perhaps a hundred pieces of music. For years he went about the street handing his card to strangers. The card proclaimed him painter, poet, composer, marksman, inventor and "ex-fancy amateur dancer." Nevertheless, critics remained distinctly unfriendly.

He also sent letters to newspapers, letters which deplored the state of art, but were full of extravagant claims for his own pictures. The letters were signed "Mahama Louis M. Eilshemius, M.A., Wonder of the World," and, for variety, "Nightier: All-Round Man."

The "Nightier: All-Round Man" has fallen on evil days. Four years ago a taxi backed into him. He has been chair-bound ever since. He ascribes the accident to the evil spirits of his enemies.

Now he no longer paints or writes. He sits with his back to the window in an old-fashioned brownstone house where he lives in lonely bachelorhood with a bachelor brother. His view takes in the staid hall. The house has never been wired for electricity.

Famous At Last
Eilshemius is now 73 years old, and fame, long in coming, has finally arrived. Retrospective shows are his lot, and his pictures hang in the great museums of the world—the Metropolitan, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Cleveland Museum, Detroit Institute, Phillips Memorial gallery in Washington, and the Luxembourg in Paris. His erstwhile critics have swallowed their harsh words and ransacked the treasury of glowing adjectives in his praise.

All this has made no difference to Eilshemius.
"Don't put me down as an eccentric," he warns. "I'm a great man." His shaggy white beard thrusts forward dramatically, and he resumes:

"Great art is vision, imagination—nothing else. Nobody can beat me for nudes—I'm bigger than Michelangelo."

Limpid blue eyes flash fire and gnarled hands gesticulate. As he speaks he wears the look of a man deliciously surprising himself by the things he is saying. When he had recovered, he went on:

HIS CRITICS EAT CROW
Louis Michel Eilshemius, 73, has lived to see his paintings famous, his critics confounded.

"Here is one of my books. Poe wrote his in 10 years. I wrote mine in 10 hours. Poe? Bah! I'm better than Poe."

"Some of those fellows make fun of me. That doesn't pay. You don't make fun of Milton, do you? Or Shakespeare? Well, I have the brain of Milton and the versatility of Shakespeare. Sometimes my language is better than Shakespeare's. He was slipshod, you know."

He paused for breath. Suddenly—"How do I look?"

He reached for a hand mirror on the table and, peering into it, picked up a pair of scissors. He then proceeded to trim his beard.

Magazine Takes A Tip
"There are no great artists today," he resumed, but it was somehow understood between him and his visitor that there was an exception. There are no great artists today because art is a religion.

"Here," he exclaimed triumphantly, "look at this art magazine. He waved it aloft.

"I wrote them to print some good stuff, not Picasso and that sort of thing. By golly, they obeyed me. Look! There's my picture and two of my paintings in this issue."

He paused to let that sink in. "Art," he suddenly exclaimed, "is like a bird flying through the air—you know that, don't you?"

His visitor looked up and saw the stuffed pelicans gazing down with dusty, lack-luster eyes.

AMONG THE 9,000
Eilshemius, who admits to painting 9,000 pictures, calls this oil, recently exhibited, "Farmhouse in the Moonlight."

Strike-Barred Workers Can't Collect Ruling

Piggly-Wiggly Inventor Seeks Third Fortune With Another New Sales Idea

Memphis—(P)—Clarence Saunders expects "Kee-doozles" to bring him a third fortune in the chain grocery field where he long has been a spectacular figure.

"The name, 'Kee-doozle,' doesn't mean a thing," he confides, "but it will be a household word before many months have elapsed, and I will be 10 times richer than I ever was before."

In the "Kee-doozle" store to open here soon electricity not only delivers the customers' purchases but adds up the cost.

"Kee-doozle stores later will be opened all over the world under standard franchises," he says. "We are going to sell to everybody except the cannibals."

The gray-haired, row-cheeked merchant, undismayed by the last of two previous fortunes, predicts his first "Kee-doozle" store will gross a million dollars the first year. In a small factory Saunders' electricians are turning out scores of new electrical gadgets to equip subsequent stores.

Working For Years
"The idea of electrically-operated grocery stores is the one I have been toying with for about five years," he explains. "We started working on it about 18 months ago. I engaged competent engineers and electricians to carry out my plan."

"This store will be able to handle 10 times as many people as the average. There'll be no loss from shrinkage, spoilage or theft. Customers can't touch and bruise fruit or vegetables. They will protect health, too. And every employee will be required to furnish a certificate of good health every 30 days."

The one-time Clarksville, Tenn., grocery clerk made his first fortune with his development of the self-service grocery store, but lost it after a Wall street battle in 1923 over shares of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc. Among other things, he lost his $1,000,000 Memphis home, the "pink palace."

Loses Second Fortune
He started a comeback with a new chain, Piggly Wiggly interests objected to his calling it "The Clarence Saunders Chain Store Systems," contending his name was a trademark synonymous with Piggly Wiggly. Right to use that name was denied, but the court upheld his right to conduct business under his own name, as long as it did not infringe on Piggly Wiggly patents. His stores then bore the name, "Clarence Saunders-Sole Owner Of My Name," and he became known as "Sole Owner."

Clarence Saunders stores were opened in other cities and the present organization prospered. Five years from the second start, Saunders had his second fortune. But difficulties arose that led him back into bankruptcy.

Expect to Organize Class D League in State for 1938

Petition Minor Association to Send Promoter

Work to Start This Summer With Plans Being Completed in December

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
The possibility of a Class D baseball league composed of Fox river valley and southern Wisconsin cities getting underway in 1938 was seen at a meeting of baseball men here Sunday afternoon at the Conway hotel, when the group went on record as requesting the American Association of Minor Baseball League to send a promotional department representative into the state in June or July to organize such a circuit.

Cities represented at the meeting were Green Bay, Manitowish, Kaukauna, Wisconsin Rapids, Two Rivers, Oshkosh, Madison, Sheboygan, Appleton and Racine.

The group frowned on organization for this year because most of the clubs felt they needed sponsorship by Class AA teams such as the Milwaukee Brewers and others, and that the season was too far advanced to get such support. Only Sheboygan was ready to undertake Class D ball this season.

Will Seek Help in December
The circuit can be organized during the summer months with responsible financial backing, the plan is to seek Class AA and major league aid during the winter months, especially at the national minor league meeting in December at Milwaukee.

Teams supporting the 1938 plan were Wisconsin Rapids, Oshkosh, Racine, Sheboygan and Kaukauna. Green Bay said it would have to refer the matter to directors. Manitowish and Two Rivers were definitely against the proposal, while Madison said it was interested, and Appleton had no answer to make. George Egan spoke for Kaukauna and August Brandt for Appleton.

Joe Carr, representing the American Association of Minor Baseball Leagues attended the meeting and outlined the Class D setup and the requirements of organized baseball. He told the meeting he was not present to high pressure the teams into a Class D league because organized ball didn't want them until they were ready to come in and had financial backing.

He explained that after a league was organized and the announcement went out that the cities were to play Class D ball they wouldn't have to look for material because so many young ball players would flock to the cities that the problem would be to handle them.

He explained that if a club were organized without sponsorship the manager would have to be a responsible manager and then sell players for at least $750 each. If sponsored by a bigger club the plan usually has been to have the sponsor send in a manager and the sponsor or home club or both pay his salary. The weakness in the plan is that in making its agreement the sponsor usually gets three to six players at a flat price at the end of the season rather than the club selling for what it can get.

Also Talks
Louis M. Nahin, business manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, also attended the meeting and explained the Milwaukee farm setup. He told the group he had come to the meeting expecting he would be asked to sponsor a team but that it was obvious the men weren't ready for Class D ball. He approved the idea of organizing next summer and then seeking Class AA or major league sponsorship next December when the minor leagues gather at Milwaukee.

Following the meeting the Wisconsin State league met with Sheboygan, Madison and Racine indicating they were ready to continue with Sunday ball as in the past. Kenosha will be sounded out during the next few days. Wisconsin Rapids may return to State league ball this year and there is a possibility Waukesha will enter a team. The meeting was told. The circuit will meet next Sunday at the Reginald Hotel, Milwaukee, to perfect plans. C. O. Baetz, Appleton, is president of the league. He also presided at yesterday's general meeting.

The Northern State league, composed of Kaukauna, Green Bay, Manitowish, Two Rivers and Menasha, indicated it would meet next Sunday at Green Bay and expected to continue playing ball as it did last season. Oshkosh was the sixth member of the circuit but whether it will show again this season is a question.

Among the men who attended the meeting were: C. O. Baetz, Appleton, president of the Wisconsin State league, who presided; O. A. Kroese and Otto Kaufman, Sheboygan; Fred Cobb, Joe Cisneros and G. W. Calhoun, Green Bay; Eddie Stump, Milwaukee; Art C. Grau, George Ryback and Lloyd B. Cain, Racine; Arthur C. Schaefer and Art Borins, Manitowish; Eddie Lenahan, Madison; B. J. Neumann, Two Rivers; George C. Egan and John Conner, Kaukauna; E. B. Brown and Goerzenitz, Oshkosh; Earl F. Otto and George Gibson, Wisconsin Rapids; and August Brandt, Appleton.

Lawrence at Carroll (non-conf.)

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
OACH ART DENNEY'S Lawrence college basketball team moved up another notch in its quest for a 500 rating in the Midwest conference standings when it defeated Cornell college.

Mr. Vernon, Ia. 36 to 29, at Alexander gymnasium Saturday night. It was Lawrence's fourth conference win against five losses and eight wins against five defeats in all games.

Tuesday the Vikings will take to the highways to battle Carroll college at Waukesha in the evening. It is a non-conference game but one which means much more to the Vikings than a lot of conference contests.

First of all the Vikings want to break that string of wins Carroll has hung up at home. And secondly, the Vikings are out in front in the mythical state conference and they'd like to improve their position with a victory.

Lawrence defeated Carroll when the teams played at Appleton. Since then the Pioneers have lost Jim Knoblauch and acquired Jim Pauler, another good performer. The freshmen teams from the two schools also will clash at Waukesha.

Handle Ball Well
Saturday's game with Cornell was pretty much an exhibition of perfect playing at least during the first half. Both teams handled the ball well and neither was inclined to do any roughing or hanging on and the officials discouraged and tended.

Too, both teams were "hot" in their shooting and whenever anyone got two feet planted on the floor he let go a shot and most of them went in. Just to vary things there would be an occasional quick break for the hoop within the score.

Don Johnston "Hot"; Point Clinches Tilt

Stevens Point—Stevens Point Teachers won their third straight Southern division conference basketball title Saturday night through a 49 to 35 victory over Milwaukee.

Don Johnston, Stevens Point guard, scored 23 points. His team led 23 to 17 at the half.

Milwaukee—A closing spurt gave Concordia college a 37 to 24 basketball victory over Northwestern of Watertown here Saturday night. Webber, Concordia guard, scored 15 points.

BADGER TANKERS LOSE

Track Stars in Seton Hall Meet

College Aces Prepare for Intercollegiate 4-A Contests

New York—The year's national titles have been awarded and the job of rewriting the indoor track record books virtually has been completed, but there's no sign of a letup in running and jumping activity.

Beginning tonight with the Seton Hall meet at Newark, N. J., the board track stars will spread out to do a little "barnstorming" while college aces will take over the spotlight with the intercollegiate 4-A. A. A. meet two weeks hence the big ten and other regional title meets.

Topping the Seton Hall program is a 12 mile race which has drawn a flock of top flight milers and two milers, including Glenn Cunningham, Italy's Luigi Beccali, Don Lash, Wayne and Blaine Rideout and Harold Manning.

Due to a cold, Cunningham didn't run in the A. A. U. 1,500 meters last Saturday, confining his efforts to a relay leg while Archie San Romani of Emporia, Kans., teachers won the feature with Beccali second.

Regardless of the fields, meets on the flat armory floors or indoor dirt tracks aren't expected to produce anything like the record breaking which reached its climax in the A. A. U. meet. Topping off an indoor campaign already notable for the wrecking of the pole vault and two mile records, two world indoor records fell Saturday.

Eddie Burke, Marquette university Negro, established a high jump mark of 6 feet 9 1/2 inches, wiping out the record of 6 feet 9 inches.

Fox River Paper Team Wins District A.A.U. Cage Crown

Defeats Kimberly Club Quintet in Finals, 39 to 30

Both Teams Will Compete In State Tournament This Week

FOX RIVER PAPER company basketball team defeated the Kimberly club, Kimberly, 39 to 30, Saturday night to win the Appleton district A. A. U. basketball championship. Kimberly club took second place honors while the Fox River team, Kaukauna, won third place with a 45 to 36 victory over the Valley Sporting Goods, Appleton.

Both Fox River and Kimberly club will compete in the state A. A. U. tournament at Milwaukee later this week. Their expenses will be paid for the days on which they compete. The winner of the state title will go to Denver, Colo., for the national A. A. U. tournament with all expenses paid by a Milwaukee newspaper.

Fox River entered the finals after beating the Gurnee Motors, 32 to 24, in the afternoon game and drawing a bye in the first round Friday night. Kimberly Club defeated the Valley Sporting Goods Saturday afternoon, 49 to 25, and trounced Neenah Kimberly-Clark team, 43 to 35.

Two all-tournament teams were announced following the Saturday night games and the awarding of medals to the first and second place teams. The first team forwards were C. Vander Velden, Kimberly Club, and Carl Lilje, Fox River; Ky Daniels, Fox River, was named center; and Joe Gossens, Kimberly Club, and Louis Grishaber, Fox River, were named guards. The second team selections were Novakowski, Valley Sporting, and Wildenberg, Gurnee, forwards; Bowman, Kimberly club, center; and L. Van Dyke, Gurnee, and M. Gochbauer, Fox River, guards.

Fox River leads at half in the championship game. Kimberly Club took an 8 to 6 lead at the end of the first quarter but the Fox River turned on the heat in the second period and was in front 17 to 9 at the end of the half. In the third quarter Fox River added 18 points to its total while Kimberly was getting 9 and the Appleton team held a 35 to 16 margin at the end of the period. The Fox River led down during the fourth quarter and Kimberly counted 12 points while the Appleton five got only 4 but the Fox River still had a 39 to 30 lead when the final whistle sounded. During the entire game play was hard and sometimes bitter and Bowman, Kimberly center was ousted for unnecessary roughness.

Gurnee Motors were paced to their 45 to 36 victory by C. Wildenberg, forward, who scored six field goals and L. Van Dyke who counted five and a free throw. The Gurnee led all the way holding a 25 to 15 edge at the half. Cy Burton paced the Sports with four buckets and four free throws good for 12 points.

Ball Players are Hoping Foxx Wins Salary Fight

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

S. PETERSBURG, Fla. — "It's your young agent back at the mike with plenty of chatter. . . Baseball men (moguls excepted, of course) are pulling for Jimmy Foxx to win his salary battle with the Boston Gold Sox. Old 'double X' was slashed from 30 to 15 grand just like nothing had happened. . . Sep, those guys with the red pens are the one who surveyed the 'official' news that Doc Sutherland would quit at Pitt. . . The Dizzy Deans may have had a long cold winter in mind when Mrs. Diz bought that Bradenton beauty foundry. Old Diz is being schooled to operate on the cubs and sub same.

England Doped to Lose Tennis Cup

Loss of Fred Perry Leaves Defenders With Only One Ace

BY BOB CAVANARO
New York — (P) — The United States, England, Australia and Germany are in the same boat insofar as Davis cup singles players are concerned.

Each nation has just one reliable and the strain that will be put on the shoulders of Lil Bunny Austin when England opens defense of the international tennis trophy next July probably will be so terrific as to cost her the cup.

As for the others: Germany has the bounding Baron Gottfried Von Cramm; Australia has Adrian Panikratz and Uncle Sam has redheaded Don Budge.

You can take it from tall Davey Jones, who went from one light blue to another, first as captain of Columbia's tennis team and then of the Cambridge forces in England. In 1934, John Bull virtually has lost the cup because his younger players aren't ready to be thrown into the breach left when Fred Perry turned pro. Jones thinks Australia will win.

You see Australia, with Quist, has probably the best all-around amateur of the day. Jones said "He's just as good at doubles as he is at singles, and I think Crawford if the chips are down, can really produce one victory."

Zoberskis, Bietilas Feature Ski Tourney

Ironwood, Mich. — Rivalry between the Zoberskis of Ironwood and the Bietilas of Ironwood featured the second annual tournament of the Cobeck Race Ski club in which Ted Zoberski took top honors yesterday.

Zoberski won Class A with jumps of 182 and 161 feet and 146 points. Paul Bietila placed second with a jump of 161 and 172 feet and 144 points. He also made the longest standing jump of the day, 163 feet, for a new slide record.

Lawrence Five Stops Cornell; at Carroll Tuesday

ing zone and a one-handed flip that invariably found its mark. The first 20 minutes saw only four fouls called on each team. It saw an unusual amount of passing and it saw Lawrence score 23 points and Cornell 16, which is a lot of points for one half.

Cliff Olsen copped the scoring honors for the Vikings with five buckets and three free throws. Several of his baskets were the result of cuts under the hoop but three were shots which Ole usually has refused to take. They were close enough to the hoop but rather long for Ole and were clean baskets with no bounding board to help. Jim Straubel took second honors with five buckets and a free throw. He had a great evening and while some of the shots were just right for a guard, he uncorked a couple that were sensational.

Birkhahn Leads Cornell
Birkhahn, Cornell captain and guard, was the ace marksmen for his team and he scored six field goals most of them from out where few men score. All he had to do was get both feet planted and let go and he either scored or missed by a fraction of an inch.

Cornell has a smooth fast team with lots of possibilities and on several occasions it worked plays that left some of the Vikings standing flat-footed—even Norm Faleide, on one occasion, and you must admit Faleide is fast plus. Lawrence got the opening tip and someone missed a try but Faleide was there for the rebound and tossed the ball back to register the first basket in less than 10 seconds. The teams added a free throw to their scores and the Olsen scored for Lawrence and the Vikes led 9 to 1. Lawrence continued to lead there after until about midway through the half when the count stood 22-11.

Straubel got two in a row and Olsen one and Lawrence led 16 to 12 and the teams then paced each other down to the rest period and Lawrence was in front 23 to 17. The teams then added a free throw each and Olsen added a free throw. Lawrence continued to lead there after until about midway through the half when the count stood 22-11.

Beloit Planning Relay Carnival

Middle West Colleges Invited to Night Tournament on May 28

Beloit — The Beloit college announced Saturday it would be honored to an invitational relay track carnival attracting athletes from more than 15 colleges in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota. The date of the meet is May 28.

The tournament to be run under floodlights in the Walter Strong Memorial Stadium, will be open only to colleges observing the rule prohibiting the participation of freshmen, although other schools may be included if they use upper-classmen only.

"There is a great need for such a meet which will include schools of similar size and similar ideals," Louis E. Means, Beloit Athletic director, said. "This need cannot be realized in the large university relay meets now held."

The relay which will follow the Midwest conference tournament at Carleton college, northfield, Minn. and the Wisconsin State meet here May 27, will climax the spring season for most of the participating teams. Means said members of the Midwest conference solidly endorsed the carnival.

Training Camp Briefs

By the Associated Press

Petersburg, Fla. — The New York Yankees found a combination of Yankees on hand when they arrived for today's opening of spring training. Among them were Pitcher Monte Pearson who won't be allowed to practice until he signs his contract, Catcher Bill Dickey, whose status is the same and Tony Lazzeri, Jake Gossell and George Selkirk, who were not due to report for another week.

Clearwater, Fla. — Burleigh Grimes, new manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has two things pretty well settled. One is that the veteran Heinie Manush will be a handy man to have around as a pinch hitter and the other that rookie Gil Brack, who played for him at Louisville, is a good outfield prospect.

"He's faster than Dog Gutierrez, about whom so much has been said," Grimes remarked, "and he can hit that ball out of any park."

Havana — After three exhibition games in which they have made few hits off Cuban pitchers, the New York Giants have begun to stir up the quantity of a better manager. But Terry and back to his residence to get a new one before the season.

Los Angeles — The first batting order of the first game of the season was one that was not so far from the old one. The first ball club ever to travel to spring camp in one of the modern railway units.

Manager Jimmy Dykes has been in Pasadena for several weeks. The infielders and outfielders are not due at camp until March 9. The Chicago Cubs are scheduled to leave for Catalina next Sunday.

GAMES SATURDAY NIGHT
Illinois at Northwestern
Minnesota at Chicago
Wisconsin at Michigan

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO — (P) — Three teams looked confidently ahead to day toward a share of the Big Ten basketball championship, while Jewell Young of Purdue was within reaching distance of a new all-time scoring record for a western conference season.

Illinois, with nine victories and two defeats, is virtually tied with Minnesota and Michigan, each with two set-backs and eight wins. On past performances, all three clubs appear likely to finish their scheduled without being whipped, although Northwestern, which meets Minnesota tonight and Illinois next Saturday, could scramble the standings with upset victories.

Young, who scored 22 points Saturday night as Purdue downed Indiana 69 to 45, has scored 161 points, only four less than the 167-point record made by Joe Relf of Northwestern. Purdue meets Wisconsin tonight in the Bollinger's arena, and the speedy Purdue forward has a good chance of setting a new high.

Despite its spectacular win over the Hoosiers, Purdue appears definitely out of the title running with three defeats and eight wins. Illinois, given a battle in the first half, swept to victory with a second period rush over Iowa, 40 to 29. Lou Boudreau scored 16 points for the Illini.

Minnesota, approaching its first title in 16 seasons, trounced Wisconsin 30 to 11 and led from the opening minutes.

Michigan, trailing 10-11 at the half, went into action in the second period to win Ohio State 38-24. Northwestern won its second straight game, after four straight defeats, by downing Chicago 34 to 27.

PURDUE AT MADISON
Madison — (P) — Jewell Young sharp-shooting Purdue forward, may set a new individual scoring record for the Big Ten when the Bollinger's meet Wisconsin's eagles here tonight in the last home game of the season.

Young has 153 points to his credit and needs only five more to break the season record of 167 set by Joe Relf of Northwestern in 1929. The Bollinger's are made 27 points against Wisconsin at LaFayette Park and he demonstrated his skill in peak form by contributing 22 points to Purdue's 69 to 45 victory over Indiana Saturday night.

Minnesota trounced the Badgers at Minneapolis Saturday, 30 to 17. None of the 10 Wisconsin players who got into the game made more than one field goal. George Rooker's four points on a field goal and two free throws was the best individual effort for Wisconsin. Martin Rook, Minnesota's star, led with six points.

The Badgers are ninth in conference standings have few supporters optimistic enough to predict a win over either Purdue or Michigan. They meet the Wolverines at Ann Arbor in the final game Saturday night.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Count Vronski, who is blackmailing Anne Phelps with a packet of love letters, is shot to death in her study. Only Anne, Bigelow, the young American from Paris, and Karsanokoff the stunning dancer, are in the apartment. They hide the body in a cupboard, as a party is imminent. Later Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist remove the corpse to Vronski's apartment. Next day Bigelow and Anne, lurching at the Colony, hear the news they expect. Bigelow returns to the studio, gets the gun--Anne's gun--and unrolls it in the Hudson.

Chapter 17
A Millionaire Is Arrested

BIGELOW had dinner at the hotel and went to bed directly afterward sleeping straight through until 11 the next morning. Then he rang for breakfast and the newspapers.

There were headlines at which he stared incredulously.

MILLIONAIRE ARRESTED FOR VRONSKI KILLING

Sitting up exactly in bed, his breakfast forgotten, Bigelow began to read feverishly:

Thorne Dryden, wealthy young New Yorker well known in society, was arrested late last night and charged with the murder of Count Anton Vronski whose body was found in his apartment yesterday morning with a bullet wound over the heart.

According to police the two men had quarreled violently a few nights before and Dryden had threatened Vronski's life. On the night that Vronski was killed, Dryden left home shortly after 10 and made a round of the night clubs looking for Vronski. He made inquiry for the Russian at three resorts that Vronski was known to frequent. The policeman on patrol duty in whose beat the murdered man's apartment lies, swears he saw Dryden twice in that vicinity on that night.

Mrs. Dryden admitted to police that there had been blood between the two men, but declared Dryden had attended a business meeting at his club the night Vronski was killed. Inquiry at the club however failed to substantiate the alibi.

Before her marriage a year ago Mrs. Dryden was Lorna Wiltoughby, only daughter of the late Daniel J. Wiltoughby. Her name had frequently been linked by gossip with that of Count Vronski before her marriage.

When arrested, Dryden refused to make any statement beyond declaring his innocence. Bigelow glanced hurriedly through the other papers, but there were all very much alike. Then he lighted a cigarette and leaned back, staring before him with anxious eyes. Here was a development they had not anticipated--that an innocent man should be arrested for the crime!

He reached for the telephone to call Anne, but it rang before he could lift the receiver.

"Hello," he called.

"Hell," came back in Austrelitz's calm tones. "I wonder if you can find time to run in and see me sometime during the day?"

"Yes, you bet I can."

"Meanwhile," said the doctor quietly, "I should say nothing and do nothing. Understand?"

"Yes," answered Bigelow.

"I've given the same advice in at least two other directions, so I shouldn't do too much telephoning from where you are, if I were you."

"I won't," promised Bigelow. He hung up and called Anne. "How about lunch?" he asked when he got her on the wire.

"Yes," cried Anne anxiously, "here--at one Mother's going out, so we shall be alone."

"I'll be there," Bigelow assured her.

Visit from a Stranger

He leaped out of bed and turned on his bath. Twenty minutes later he was briskly rubbing himself down, he heard a knock on his sitting room door. He drew on a bath robe and went to open it. Before him stood a man he'd never seen before--a rather stocky, middle-aged man with rugged features and sharp eyes.

"Mr. Bigelow?" asked the man, scrutinizing him.

"Yes," said Bigelow. "Come in."

The visitor entered his study and entered and then closed the door.

"Hope you'll excuse my coming like this without first making an appointment. But I didn't think I could know my name and I didn't want to explain my business by phone."

"That's all right," said Bigelow, "but I'm afraid I haven't much time."

"I'll take as much of it as you can give me anyway," said the other with a faint smile. "My name is Herman L. Strong. That won't convey anything to you, probably. I understand you haven't lived in New York for some years. Well, I'm a lawyer--and I am representing Thorne Dryden."

"Dryden?" repeated Bigelow, staring. "So?" I was just reading about him in the newspaper, but I don't believe I've ever met him so I can't imagine why you have come to see me. But sit down--won't you?"

"Thank you," said Strong, laying down his hat and coat.

"A cigarette?"

"No, I'll smoke a cigar if you don't mind." He drew one from his pocket and bit off the end.

"Go ahead," said Bigelow, his tone and manner still casual. "I'll be with you in a moment."

He went into the bedroom chiefly to stall for time, although he was burning up with anxiety to know the purpose behind the visit. It could only be that the lawyer was here to find out about the murder of himself, but why had he come here? How had he got on the trail so quickly?

Bigelow picked up his military brushes and began to brush his damp and tousled hair. The essential thing for him to remember, he knew, was that he must betray nothing--reveal no reaction whatever this man might say. He schooled himself to calmness, reminding himself that Anne's safety might depend upon it.

Folding a scarf around his throat, he glanced at his reflection in the mirror, and satisfied with what he saw, re-entered the sitting room and began to pour himself some coffee with a steady hand.

Strong declined coffee and sat smoking with the ghost of a smile in his shrewd eyes. He looked as if he knew that Bigelow had been stalling for time. There was something quiet and watchful and purposeful about the way he sat hunched up there, waiting.

"You know Count Vronski, I believe," said the lawyer as Bigelow sat down.

"Very slightly," answered Bigelow. "As a matter of fact, I met him for the first time the night he was killed."

Strong nodded as if he had known that. "I suppose you were surprised when you heard of Dryden's arrest?" he lowered his eyes. "Hardly surprised," corrected

New London Cage Squads Victors In Three Games

Neenah, Little Chute and Manawa Teams are Victims

New London—New London's city cagers turned back all comers at the 3-game benefit program of the Band Boosters at the Washington High school gym yesterday afternoon. Mike Taverners defeated the Valvoline Oils of Neenah 43 to 40, Freiburgers Cities Service took the game from the American Legion Girls club of Little Chute 20 to 19, and Johnsons Service team won over Manawa 29 to 19.

The game with the girls team proved most interesting and entertaining to the 100 or more fans who attended. While the boys fought the girls in their way most of the time they managed to chalk up a 6 to 0 and 12 to 1 score at the end of the first two quarters the girls gained four baskets and a free throw while the boys relaxed a bit. The last quarter was a game of give and take with Miss Brys, forward, scoring a total of five field goals and one free throw. The girls were accompanied by their manager, Greg Hartjes.

Overtime Game
The game with Neenah went into overtime at 37-all when the Valvoline team caught up the Mike Taverners after trailing 10 to 7 and 20 to 15 at the end of the quarter and half. They had a 1-point lead at the opening of the last quarter.

Johnson's service broke through 7 to 6 disadvantage at the end of the first quarter to emerge ahead of Manawa 15 to 11 at the half. They increased their lead to 23 to 15 in the third quarter and held it to the end of the game.

The tavern team will invade Manawa Thursday evening.

Forest County Couple Is First Under RA Program

Crandon, Wis.—(AP)—An elderly couple who found it no longer possible to make a living on their farm in the Forest county cutover timber region took up housekeeping Friday in a modern three-room cottage provided by the resettlement administration.

RA workers said the transfer was the first anywhere in the country under the sub-marginal land retirement program.

The project provides for purchase by the RA of settlers' farms situated in poor land areas, transfer of the settlers to new homes, and transfer of the acreage to the national forest service. The land will be retired from crop production and revert to forest.

It has been hard, the last few years, for James Farrar to make enough from his 160-acre farm in the town of Blackwell to keep himself and his wife. They're getting old—he's 63 and she's 60—and can no longer do the work necessary to make out.

So the RA purchased their farm, built them a trim little house on an acre of land on the outskirts of Crandon and moved them yesterday. Oliver Griswold, of the RA office in Milwaukee, supervised the job.

Mrs. Farrar eagerly arranged and re-arranged the furniture. Farrar stirred about the new house with a new spring in his step. This, they agreed, beat their backwoods life.

No longer are they 30 miles from medical aid and food supplies. The new house is electrically lighted, has an inside pump, a gas heating plant and a basement.

The farm brought enough to pay off the mortgage. Farrar will have a garden in good soil to help keep the table. He'll have a WPA job now and then.

R. A. officials said the rural rehabilitation corporation of Wisconsin, the agency through which the project was financed, retains title to the couple's new home. Forest county will pay the rent.
